

The LAGUNA project - towards the giant, liquid base detectors for proton decay searches and for low energy neutrino astrophysics.

Friday, July 17, 2009 3:00 PM (15 minutes)

The LAGUNA project and its present status will be presented. Some aspects of the physics potential of three liquid base (liquid argon, scintillator and water), large scale particle detectors will be also discussed.

Primary author: Prof. KISIEL, Jan (Institute of Physics, University of Silesia, Katowice, Poland)

Presenter: Prof. KISIEL, Jan (Institute of Physics, University of Silesia, Katowice, Poland)

Session Classification: I. Neutrino Physics

Track Classification: Neutrino Physics